Calling all farmers, parents, athletes— everyone with physically demanding jobs!

Your body is your primary work tool—let's ensure it's performing to the max.

Stop hurting. Start living.

Do you have pain in your knee, shoulder, hip, or other areas of your body? Living with ongoing pain affects all areas of your life. When your job gives you pain—whether you're a farmer, a laborer, a parent, an athlete, or even sit at a desk all day in an uncomfortable chair—it becomes increasingly hard to work well at your job, manage daily tasks, or enjoy your family and friends, or activities. Our talented orthopaedics and sports medicine team can help!

Meet our team.

Dr. Leo Chough, orthopaedic surgeon, Dr. Brett DeGooyer, sports medicine physician, and Chris Stone, certified physician's assistant, make up our orthopaedics and sports medicine care team. Dr. Chough and Dr. DeGooyer are both fellowship trained in sports medicine, which increases the skills they bring as highly trained orthopaedic physicians. Dr. Chough, Dr. DeGooyer, and Stone help Moses Lake area residents return to their active, everyday lives through state-of-the-art orthopaedic surgery, non-surgical sports medicine treatments, and related orthopaedic clinic services.

Chronic pain.

If you need treatment for chronic pain (lasting three months or longer), ask about Samaritan's Pain Management Clinic, which provides the full continuum of pain management care.

Sports medicine.

You don't need to be an "athlete" to benefit from sports medicine. Whether an injury or medical issue occurs in the workplace or at home, or during sports or recreation, sports medicine can help patients of all ages and in all areas of life. Sports medicine provides physical conditioning, diagnoses, and treatment of injuries with solutions for pain in non-surgical methods.

Orthopaedic surgical expertise.

When surgery is needed, Dr. Leo Chough, our on-staff orthopaedic surgeon can help. Dr. Chough is highly skilled in arthroscopy (small incision surgery), joint replacement surgery— anterior hip replacement, knee replacement, and reverse and regular shoulder replacements—as well as arthroscopic procedures, such as rotator cuff repair, ACL reconstruction/revision, and more. His expertise and experience utilize muscle-sparing surgical techniques—leading to more rapid recoveries for patients.

Rapid Recovery procedures:

- Are as pain-free as possible.
- Equate to shorter hospital stays and fewer complications.
- Get patients back to their lives more quickly—the way it should be.

Dr. Brett DeGooyer, sports medicine.

As a doctor of osteopathic medicine and a sports medicine physician, Dr. DeGooyer was fellowship trained in sports medicine and he has a wide range of professional experience with active people of all ages. Non-surgical sports medicine services and treatments offered by Dr. DeGooyer include musculoskeletal or tendon injuries and diseases, prevention and treatment of sports injuries, non-surgical fracture management, concussion management, musculoskeletal ultrasound, joint injections, osteopathic manipulative treatment, sports physicals, and more.

Dr. Leo Chough, orthopaedic surgeon.

Dr. Chough has always been committed to refining and perfecting the best surgical solution for anterior hip replacement—a minimally invasive surgical technique that allows the muscles to be moved aside rather than cut. He has successfully performed anterior hip replacement surgeries since 2003. Dr. Chough was also a live, regional instructor for other surgeons wanting to learn the state-of-the-art, anterior hip technique. His years of training and experience stretch from the East Coast, to the Upper Midwest, and the Pacific Northwest.

Chris Stone, orthopaedic physician's assistant.

Chris Stone enjoys seeing how orthopaedic treatment changes his patients' lives. He is also highly qualified and possesses the skill and ability to care for patients in the clinic for conditions such as hip or knee pain, sprains, fractures, dislocations, and joint injections. In surgery, Stone assists Dr. Chough in performing arthroscopic (small incision) and replacement surgeries for knees, hips, shoulders, and more, and he also provides pre- and post-surgical care.

It's all right here. Samaritan Orthopaedics and Sports Medicine.

Orthopaedic surgery and treatments and sports medicine are all available right here in Moses Lake, where you can be close to your family, close to home, close to healing. Dr. Chough, Dr. DeGooyer, and Chris Stone's team approach also makes it easier to schedule an orthopaedic appointment and increases the level of care provided to their patients.
